In an article published by The Washington Post, it was alleged that "It's so popular among young people even that the Chinese government is now trying to ban it." It continued by saying that "The app, which started as a music-sharing app, has rapidly grown into one of the world's largest social networks for young people. It has a wide user base in China and Asia but has also gained popularity in Europe and the United States. But some people in those regions are concerned about whatever is happening on TikTok. They say it is addictive, and they worry it can be used by adults to groom children or teenagers." This article was published on The Washington Post.",

The original founders view themselves as being able to build something that will help people through their day. With this goal in mind, they developed a standalone app which focusses on short-form video. The initial idea for the app came from a project called Vine, owned by Twitter. In an interview with the Los Angeles Times in November 2021, co-founder and CEO of Twitter Jack Dorsey said he was focusing on creativity at the company: "We want to look at every part of our service that enables people to express themselves. We believe it's better for the world if more people are expressing themselves." Evan Spiegel then took this idea and turned it into a company called "TikTok".",

The app has been criticized for its addictive nature amongst teens especially vulnerable individuals. The app has been described as a "social lubricant" for "teens looking to escape awkward interactions".",
